'PIONEER' — Rick Norcross, a Florida Southern College student and sometimes folk singer from East Hardwick, Vt., refutes the cynic's cry that today's youth has lost the spirit of the pioneers who built this country. He is traveling from his home state to North Webster, Ind., where he will do some work with the Methodist Church before continuing south to resume studies. His mode of transportation is a 1933 truck he found in a field near his home last Monday. He said it needed spark plugs. To spruce it up a bit he replaced the battery and adorned it with a new gas cap. He stopped at Warner's Motor Sales at Westminster yesterday because of minor generator problems — his lights wouldn't work all the time. (Evening Sun Photo)
